Subject: Comments on off-shore wind

While I only recently learned of the renewed effort to consider wind energy in Delaware, the most salient comment I would like to make is that wind needs to be considered as one part of a more integrated and cohesive state strategy for energy generation.

It also needs to be considered over long time lines, such as twenty and fifty years, as far as financial calculations are concerned. While that adds to the complexity of decision making, it also makes it more likely our overall strategy will be effective and efficient.

Thank you for your consideration.
